First.....a little history!

There are 619 developed and leasable units.

Our community is comprised of year-round residents and part-time residents, more affectionately known as “Snowbirds”.

Who is the Co-Op?

- Co-Op is a shortened version of Cooperative, a form of ownership with shareholders for the Horizon Village not-for-profit cooperative corporation, which was formed under Florida state law by filing articles of incorporation with the state.

Why is there a Board of Directors?

- The Master Form Proprietary Lease, the governing document, designates a “Board of Directors” or “Board Administrators” or “Directors” is responsible for administration of the Co-Op.
- Nine directors make up the board
- All directors are residents of the Park and holders of Membership Certificates or a designated Voting Member of a Membership Certificate

Article V. 5.1 of the Bylaws gives a full description of the Directors powers and duties.
- Article V. 5.1-POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE DIRECTORS in the Bylaws states “The board of Directors shall have the powers and duties necessary for the administration of the affairs of the corporation. . .”

What Is Community Living?

Horizon Village is a 55+ resident owned community designed for older persons.

As a community, we have Bylaws and Rules & Regulations to ensure that the Park is operated to maintain the Park's exemption under the Fair Housing Amendments of 1988 and the Housing for Older Person's Act of 1995.

How Does It Differ From An Ordinary Residential Neighborhood?

There are Rules & Regulations designed to maintain the quality of the property and ensure everyone has equal enjoyment of the common grounds without encroaching upon the rights of others.

Monthly fees are paid to the Co-Op and are used to run the day-to-day operations, as well as funds for medium and long-term needs of the community.

Why Do We Have Rules?

Simply put, the purpose of having rules is this:

- Rules are developed to convey specific requirements of owners, tenants, and guests so that we may enjoy the Park, including its amenities and common areas, without causing harm to the Co-Op, our population or our physical assets.
- It is your responsibility for reading and following the rules and there is a process when violations occur.

We highly recommend that you check out the various groups and activities, as they are a conduit to form friendships and have fun!
